The NCFS budget advisory whānau advocacy services aims to help people experiencing financial difficulties. We provide free financial capability advice and education. We provide a wraparound service that will advise, guide and support clients to find steps to meet their financial goals, that can include reduction and elimination of debt or increase savings. In 2020 and the onset of Covid-19, we have helped 230 clients with budget and whānau support. An additional 339 families apply and receive food parcels. Our main operational costs includes phone and our office rental. We ask for a contribution to ensure we can provide an office space for referrals and walk-ins. Phone and Internet are vital for communication with clients etc. Included in this application is a request for funds for a promotional campaign, enabling new clients to be able to access our service, leaflet, business cards and posters.
